Message: Hi, was gonna withdraw or deposit earlier (I don't even remember), I didn't look very close I just entered the amount and hit the submit button. It then showed some error about the phone number, and upon closing it and looking I saw that my browser/password manager had automatically filled in a family member's number which unluckily enough was saved in there on my laptop as I have let them use the device a few times prior. Now it looks like I can't do anything, when I try to deposit it says "Account Access - Access to this section is currently restricted." and I can't do anything, kind of sad because I would like to re-do it correctly this time, deposit, and play. Would appreciate if there is any potential of getting this resolved because Bet365 is my favorite casino and sportsbook, and I don't like using the competitors as much. Thank you!

Hi there,

I'm afraid I'm still "banned" from Bet365, kind of sad due to such an "innocent" mistake, it is my favorite site too.

Maybe it is because it is a weekend to be fair, not sure if you work on weekends.

Looking forward to your response.

Thanks!

Hi [REDACTED]

I'm sorry to hear that you are not able to use your account.

After reviewing your account, I see that your account was suspended after deposit you made.

I think what might happen is that you used this payment method on different account ? Did you have different account previously?

This is why the account got suspended and it was send for review to responsible department.

I understand that waiting time is not ideal and I can imagine the struggle, however this department is currently very busy and overload with work this is why it takes time.

Additionally, I sent the reminder to the department and all we need to do is now wait for the outcome of the review.

Unfortunately, this is all we can do now and it is not something I can speed up for you or do it straight away. The relevant department will review it as soon as they can and we will inform you of the outcome via email.

I'm very sorry for the waiting time as there is no time frame, as long as it takes. Please accept our apologies for any inconvenience this has caused.

Thank you for your understanding and we wish you pleasant evening.

Kind regards,

Hi again,

Nope, I do not have any other account. This is my only account and it is verified with BankID (Swedish e-identity). I think I recall that the family member's phone number that was accidentally entered by autofill does have a Bet365 account though, because that is how I learned about Bet365 in the first place, so that could be what caused it.

Thanks!

Hi again,

Nope, I do not have any other account. This is my only account and it is verified with BankID (Swedish e-identity). I think I recall that the family member's phone number that was accidentally entered by autofill does have a Bet365 account though, because that is how I learned about Bet365 in the first place, so that could be what caused it.

Thanks!

Hi again,

I am following up regarding my account, which now shows the message: "Your account is permanently self-excluded. Neither you nor any person at bet365 is able to re-open your account."

This is a slightly longer email so that I can clarify exactly what error happened.

I first want to clarify that I did not request self-exclusion. Upon my checks, it appears to have been triggered by a technical error when my browser autofilled my mother's Swish phone number during a deposit attempt.

She has her own Bet365 account and is currently self-excluded through Spelpaus for a short duration, but I am not. I checked this.

Because of this, it seems my account has been incorrectly linked to hers. To be clear:

- We are two separate individuals with different accounts, despite being in the same household and using the same internet connection.
- I have always used my own verified payment methods for deposits and withdrawals. (Why would I not do that?)
- I have never registered for Spelpaus or requested self-exclusion. This seems like a misclassification on your part, not a voluntary action.

Permanently closing my account over a one-time autofill mistake feels pretty disproportionate. Simply rejecting the transaction would have been more appropriate, thus I kindly ask that you escalate this to your compliance team for review.

I respectfully request that my account be reinstated, as the restriction was caused by an accidental use of the wrong phone number one single time and not by any attempt to bypass your rules.

I can bet my dime that it won't happen again, as I will disable the password manager from doing this and be removing old information that isn't mine.

Thank you for your time and understanding.

Hi [REDACTED]

I understand that you are looking for assistance following your account being permanently Self Excluded.

Having reviewed your account I can see that following a management review of the account I can confirm they have made the decision to close your account on a permanent basis with no option to reopen. You will no longer be able to use bet365 as a service.

I appreciate that this is not what you were looking to hear today. Unfortunately, no further information can be provided. Our management team reviews accounts regularly and on this occasion have decided that you will be unable to use bet365 moving forward.

We wouldn't look to provide further information regarding this however I can appreciate this is not the outcome that you were looking to receive.

Thank you for your understanding.

Kind regards,

Hi again,

Not being able to play on Bet365 doesn't really mean the world to me, rest assured that I can live without it. Stocks are better than gambling anyways.

However, what does concern me as someone who has read many laws on my spare time is the failure to meet basic requirements of the relevant gambling law (such as providing a clear and reasonable explanation when taking action that affects one's account).

Just wondering if the information I provided was passed to them? Otherwise, I can see why they took that decision. It is easy to assume the worst if you don't have any context what so ever other than the system's immense warnings for a one-time technical mistake.

If this information wasn't considered, I'd like to formally request a re-review of my account which I believe I'm entitled to that under the Swedish Gambling Act.

I would hope that you know which one I am referring to, but for complete clarity, the relevant law is: SFS 2018:1138, Chapter 3, Section 1 (which requires licensed operators to conduct their operations in a sound and secure manner, with proper regard for consumer protection).

If the information I provided was indeed taken into account, then I would genuinely love to hear how you resonate taking a permanent action for a one-time mistake! Perhaps you have a different opinion than mine, and that's fine by me, as long as a clear and reasonable explanation as per legal requirement (if not obvious).

Thanks in advance - would love to see some cooperation on your side as well.

Hi again,

Thanks for the response. I have to say, it's becoming increasingly unclear whether my previous messages have actually been read. None of the points I raised were addressed — not the verified context, not the autofill error, not the legal reference to SFS 2018:1138, and not my request for a manual re-review.

Every reply seems to come from a different support agent, which makes it difficult to maintain continuity or confirm whether anything I've submitted has been passed on. This lack of consistency adds to the confusion and makes it harder to trust that a proper review has taken place.

If my information wasn't reviewed, I understand how the decision might have been made. It's easy to assume the worst when a system throws a thousand warnings over a one-time technical mistake with no context. But if this was a genuine management decision, I would appreciate knowing how it was reached. Right now, it looks like a permanent exclusion was triggered by a technical autofill error, with no human review and no explanation. That's disproportionate and fails the basic standards of consumer protection under the Swedish Gambling Act (SFS 2018:1138, Chapter 3, Section 1).

I'm not asking for special treatment. I'm asking for a fair review of a misclassification. You already have my verified BankID, correct Swish number, and account history. If that wasn't reviewed, the decision is flawed. If it was, I would genuinely like to hear the reasoning. Even Cisco's support manages better copy-paste responses, and they don't lock people out over autofill errors.

This situation is making both our days more complicated than necessary. I'm still hoping for cooperation and a proper resolution.

Best regards,

harder to trust that a proper review has taken place.

If my information wasn't reviewed, I understand how the decision might have been made. It's easy to assume the worst when a system throws a thousand warnings over a one-time technical mistake with no context. But if this was a genuine management decision, I would appreciate knowing how it was reached. Right now, it looks like a permanent exclusion was triggered by a technical autofill error, with no human review and no explanation. That's disproportionate and fails the basic standards of consumer protection under the Swedish Gambling Act (SFS 2018:1138, Chapter 3, Section 1).

I'm not asking for special treatment. I'm asking for a fair review of a misclassification. You already have my verified BankID, correct Swish number, and account history. If that wasn't reviewed, the decision is flawed. If it was, I would genuinely like to hear the reasoning. Even Cisco's support manages better copy-paste responses, and they don't lock people out over autofill errors.

This situation is making both our days more complicated than necessary. I'm still hoping for cooperation and a proper resolution.

Best regards,

[REDACTED]

Hi again,

Damn, that must be some very confidential information you're holding on to, Geoffrey.

I've asked for a manual review, provided verified identity, explained the autofill error, and referenced Swedish gambling law — and still, all I get is a copy-paste about terms and conditions. Let me be clear: this isn't about your internal policy. It's about whether Bet365 is complying with SFS 2018:1138, Chapter 3, Section 1, which requires that gambling operations be conducted in a sound and secure manner under public oversight, with proper consumer protection. You can find the full legal reference here: <https://lagen.nu/2018:1138#K3>

A permanent exclusion triggered by a one-time autofill mistake, without manual review or contextual assessment, does not meet that standard.

I'm requesting that this matter be handled by a Swedish-speaking agent who understands the legal context and can respond accordingly. I haven't submitted the case to the Swedish Gambling Authority (Spelinspektionen) yet, but I'm starting to run out of patience — and I'd prefer to let them be the judge and save both myself and your support team the energy of another round of copy-paste replies.

Please confirm whether this is possible.

Best regards,

Hi again,

Thank you for confirming that your decision remains unchanged.

However, your response fails to comply with Chapter 13 §9 of the Swedish Gambling Act (SFS 2018:1138), which clearly states:

"If a license holder closes a player account, the player shall be informed in writing thereof and the reasons for the decision."

You've now explicitly refused to provide any reason beyond a vague reference to "Terms and Conditions," despite being presented with the translated legal document from the Swedish Gambling Authority for ease of access, as well as the original Swedish version (found at Spellag \(2018:1138\) | Sveriges riksdag). This constitutes a documented breach of Swedish law.

To be clear, I understand that this decision likely originates from your management or compliance team, not from you personally. However, since you are the point of contact, I must formally raise the following:

Since Bet365 is now refusing service and declining to provide a lawful reason for doing so, I would like to know what legal basis under GDPR Article 6 you rely on to continue processing and storing my personal data — including name, email, address, SSN, payment methods, and other sensitive information. If there is no longer a valid purpose for retaining this data, I expect it to be erased in accordance with Article 17 – Right to erasure. If I do not receive a lawful justification or confirmation of erasure within 7 days, I will proceed with a formal GDPR erasure request and notify the Swedish Data Protection Authority (IMY).

I hope that we can resolve this issue eventually.

Best regards, [REDACTED]

Hi again,

Thank you for your message. You have stated that my complaint was “resolved” earlier today. I must point out that this is well above an overstatement – the matter was not resolved by mutual agreement, but simply closed by you through a final response.

As the complaints procedure is now considered complete on your side, I request that you proceed with the withdrawal of the full remaining balance. I do not recall the exact figure, but you have confirmed it as 0.70 SEK.

Please use the following bank details for the transfer:

- Account number: [REDACTED] (includes clearing at the start)
- Sort/clearing number: [REDACTED]

Hi Chelsea,

Thanks for getting back to me quickly.

Unfortunately, I received an email today containing the following:

"We are contacting you regarding your bank wire withdrawal.

Unfortunately, we have been unable to process your withdrawal, therefore we have returned the funds to your balance.

Please check that the bank details you have registered with us are correct. Log into your account, go to the Account menu, select Bank and choose Withdraw. You can check your bank details against your online banking account or bank statement, or by contacting your bank. If the details registered on your bet365 account are correct, please speak with your bank to find out why the funds have been returned.

Once the issue has been resolved, please request your withdrawal again."

By any chance, do you have any more specific information on why it failed?

Everything I sent is correct and copy-pasted straight from my bank, so I do not see any reason for that.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Regards,

Hi again,

I've now received my 0.7 SEK, thank you.

Completely life-changing - I think I will book a vacation now!

One more question - the response to the complaint included a vague mention that you will store my data as long as I am a "bet365 customer", without any clear definition of what that actually means. So, I would like some clarification. Since you are permanently refusing service, am I now no longer a "bet365 customer"? In that case, I expect my account and data to be deleted after the 5 years has passed, in which you are required to keep the data due to regulations.

Thank you.

Best regards,

Hi again,

Thank you for your reply. However, my original question was not answered.

You state that data is retained "as long as I am a bet365 customer," but you have not defined what being a customer actually means in this context. Since you have permanently refused me service, I need to know whether I am still considered a "customer" under your definition, or if my status is now that of a former customer.

This distinction is important, because it determines when the 5-year retention period begins and when my data should be scheduled for deletion.

Could you please provide a clear answer to this specific point? Or should I escalate this question directly to your Data Protection team at data.protection@bet365.com?

Thank you in advance for clarifying.

Best regards,
